Mike,

Just circling back from our conversation earlier today. You asked if TCLP was run on any of the concrete samples.

The Calbag WMP states the process for determining if the concrete is hazardous or non-hazardous. The WMP indicates that total analyses will be completed on the samples and TCLP analysis would only be completed if the total results exceed the 20 times the RCRA Toxicity Characteristic action levels in 40 CFR 261.24. I have attached Table 3 from the WMP SAP for your reference which summarizes this.

My understanding from speaking with Cliff is that all of the concrete was determined to be non-hazardous as per the process outlined in the WMP.

As Roux is not handling the determination of hazardous vs non-hazardous, I suggest you speak Calbag for additional information.
